

---

Subject: Re: Do You Like E.A. Games?. I Think.
Posted by Oblivion165 on Sun, 20 Apr 2008 19:41:27 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Section 1:

Community God? Does someone doing something more than you automatically bump them from being involved at all to God status? You do nothing, I do something. This is not that hard... Oh wait, this might help you:

Your involvement < My involvement

I'm sure H.R. Puff n' Stuff appreciates your positivity. However I want something to get done and I don't see any of those hundreds of EA related petitions going anywhere.

Section 2:

It's called being pro-active, I'm not sitting here complaining, I'm doing. Also again, for another attempt at getting you to actually read and debate on the subject.. "Since C&C3", I have a crap load of EA Games. It's not like I wasn't a customer and just camped outside their headquarters in 1982 and started downloading. I was a customer and have actually dealt with them and their products before.

Section 3:

"kinda like some scrub on welfare complaining about the government"

Flaw A: EA Games does not provide me with anything of value. If anything, I've paid them. Hence the whole "as of C&C3 I'm not buying any more of their crap". Thats a lot of The First Decade, Generals and a few other non-C&C related games that came before it. Am I satisfied with the product? No.

Flaw B: The walk to getting on welfare is a long and tedious task. Not only does it take years, it takes hundreds to thousands of your own money to get on the system when you have been denied from the initial claim. (Which is most of claims)

There is only one system more screwed up than welfare and that is disability. My mother had to fight for 6 years and 10 thousand dollars later to get on disability with every doctor in 3 counties telling her to get on it as soon as possible.

I'm not on either of the systems but I say bitch away. A flawed government needs to be challenged, not accepted.

Flaw C: The category of complaint is not defined in your analogy. Complaining about the war in Iraq? Bush blew up some boat in the Pacific? I would assume that you mean complaining about Welfare but.....see flaw b.

Flaw D: The fact that EA's products are not large sums of money or even worth anything at all completely undermines the act in question.

Flaw E: People on welfare don't send checks into the Government.

Section 4:

If you bothered to read the section and not try to think of more puns and jokes to post back you could see that I wasn't actually talking about your spelling.

Your uninformed "wanna-be" statement just shows how much of that veil is over your eyes. There are things outside of this forum and your world that go on without you being witness.

---