People have been pressing me on my balls about this too, When I leave school I want to go to collage and learn more about Hardware, But the only collage courses I can take are how to use MS Word and Excel, which sucks.

Probably different in America though, Computer Science is something to look into, But I'm not sure if it's hardware or software or programming you'd be learning.