so what was your exact steps. complete format using vista cd im assuming, then reinstall... then all the updates then antivirus w/e only after that you went to games right?

will have to try that this week or weekend... thing i like about vista was that it installs really fast compared to xp that took almost 3 hours before you are actually moving onto updates.

well it does seem to be the only option that i havent tried yet.
if there are any other ways to do this post them asap since otherwise i am probably going to format in the next few days.

thanks for the help
