I mean, In Britain, it's great, I never worry someone is going to shoot me, and if someone did, when I'm being rushed to hospital at least I don't think to myself "Shit, will I be able to pay for this operation?"

But then we have to worry about knives.. which is a problem in London for the most part, proof:

That's how bad stabbing in London are, they need to add them around the city, lol.

I like gun control - and when the Government turns their back on us, 2000 citizens rushing a unsuspecting Military barracks is a guarantee for free weapons.

hurr hurr.
