There are hundreds of tips on how to make your computer/internet run faster but many of them will effect other things from working properly. Generally turn off the things you dont use will help your system greatly. A virus/spyware in-depth check once every 2 weeks will also improve performance in all areas.

The usual program way to get a better connection and get better download speeds is by using Firefox, and simiply just to get a better internet connection, also if your downloading a file from a server that is capped then the best alternative is to get it from a server that is not capped or at least capped to a speed that won't affect your download speed because the cap speed is faster than the speed of your I.S.P and their provided speed to you.

... You make no sense.
