I'm the type of person who would move based on the direction my nation is going and has been going.

If I can find a nation that appreciates the views that I adhere to, why would I want to stay in a nation that continues to go AWAY from what I want?

That's like sitting through a movie that is terrible and only seems to be getting worse by the minute when you can get a refund and see a movie you know you will enjoy. It's a no-brainer.

Though, I do plan on sticking through a lot of this and seeing if the nation can get turned around and start shrinking the government down to the size it was intended to be. If not, I see no reason why I should have to endure a system of government that I cannot agree with. As it stands, I don't agree with Democrats or Republicans on any majority of issues.
