you can't figure out why I guessed that he's poor? considering how many games he seems intent on stealing?
Reload on that one, I think its wrong to attack someone on what you believe their financial status to be.

you all agree that it is morally acceptable to steal from a company because you don't like their products?

you all agree that if you are unhappy with a game (like, say, renegade) it is preferable to try to "kill" the publisher rather than make patches and whatnot?

these two points are the crux of my entire stance in this thread, so give me a yes or a no to both of those questions.

I guess I just believe that most people that torrent games will go out and actually buy those games if they are any fun, otherwise they probably wont keep playing them anyways.
