1.) Make sure you've got a current anti-virus program installed, as well as a good anti-malware program (I recommend Spybot or Malwarebytes), and make sure both are up to date in terms of virus definitions and other updates.

2.) Restart your computer in safe mode, and run those scans to their max ability.

3.) While in safe mode, open up msconfig (Start > Run, type "msconfig", no quotes). Be careful with this utility. Click the startup tab. Disable suspicious entries. When in doubt, Google it.

Should help considerably.
