There are still full servers every day. AOW is the most popular like always, there are decent snipe servers where still alot of people play in. The only sad thing is that the clanwars aren't as much played as before.

Also communitys and modders are getting the best out of Renegade. There is now a team called Tiberian Technologies working on the newest patch for Reneagde. They are fixing every bug known of occuring in Renegade, also the graphics are being upgraded, and new features such as a Automapdownloader which will be very usefull if you want to play new maps.

A cool feature which was released last year is the GPS radar, the renegade hud suddenly became very important and everyone wanted to have it. Now that there are still features being added, such as building bars, minelimit, mapoverviews it gets more and more interesting.

As I see it right now Renegade will stay with us for more years, at least I can't get enough of it.. its like a drug

I only have my thoughts how people react when Renegade-X comes out. Ofcourse its cool to have such mod for a much better engine then Renegade, but if to much people move from Renegade to Renegade-X Renegade will really die.. I'm affraid when I play Renegade-x I will miss the real feeling of Renegade, hopefully I'm wrong

Allright that was my story

wow nice story
