So, basicly you're saying that Renegade sucks?

Look dude, they took 5 fucking years to develop this game, they had to make it meet the year's standards and all...

But there's only 1 guy to blame for this, and I don't remember his name, he joined the team and decided the remake the whole game, which was the worse idea ever.

So stop blaming EA for everything, EA is a company, they need to pay their employees with the money we put in their games, if they aren't making any money, they move on, just like any other freakin' companies.

Now you're going to say: But Westwood was different!

My awnser is simple: Of course it was! They were owned by Virgin before! And Virgin has a different mentality which is: If you don't like what you do, you shouldn't be here
