Dutch - mother tongue

French - at school, but made it perfect by dating and later marrying a French speaking girl

English - learned at school, but made it much better thanks to communicating on the Internet

German - learned at school, was quite good at it actually but lost most of it now as I never use it anymore

Luxembourgish - I understand it partially, but cant really speak it. Learned it through my parents in law

Languages are a real strength in everything you do, except when you're a native English speaking: then you just need to make your English perfect
