I'm certainly racking my brains, you and your admins make your case weaker with every post.

Jellybe4n wrote on Tue, 06 October 2009 19:49 Just let him do what he wants to do and contact who he wants, and beaver away behind my back doing what he wants to do, he wants his finger in as many pies as he can, and he'll do whatever he wants to get the pointsfix implemented on as many servers as possible. That's what this is about, the points fix and the fact we don't want it. His interest in hostnames has only popped up because he wants to get the points fix servers at the top seeing as we don't run it now. When we ran it for like 18 months he never mentioned host names when we had 5 servers up, now we have 3 which don't run the fix, it's suddenly a scandal of the highest magnitude.....

Once he's gone crying to EA and xwis and most likely Gordon Brown, I'll do what I need to do. Y'know, jelly, there have been plenty of people on the anti-pointsfix side who've completely gone wrong over this whole thing, and decided that I'm the great satan when I've done absolutely nothing wrong to them. I didn't think you'd go this way too, I really didn't.

But here's the simple fact of it: what I'm saying about your monopoly on the game listings is completely legitimate to say. When you and your admins try to belittle what is being said instead of actually defending your position, you make your case weaker, not stronger. You show everybody that you are not qualified to handle this power. You're throwing all these conspiracy theories about, concerning why I'm suddenly talking about this now? Gee, I dunno, maybe because I've been away from this game for a year to look after a relative with cancer. It's nothing to do with the pointsfix.

I've done nothing wrong to you here, and when you come back to your senses I'll still consider you my friend, chris.
