
Subject: Re: The Pointsfix and the Game Listings
Posted by Spoony on Fri, 09 Oct 2009 12:50:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Ethel wrote: Except that's not what you said at all, you said that you "inferred from Crimson's posts" that TT has both permission to patch Renegade AND to manage the XWIS listings. No, I just said the patching. This is the question I was answering at the time: "Do TT have authority to apply a global patch to Renegade or is that still under negotiation?"

PapaElbo wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 00:25: Spoony wrote on Thu, 08 October 2009 23:06: PapaElbo wrote on Thu, 08 October 2009 22:46: The fact is, you have vehemently stated and restated your original post only evolving to include an actual threat to attack the Jelly community itself.

!?!?

This means you haven't even considered you are wrong (or at least, it doesn't look like it!). Your responses are reply and repeat, reply and repeat.

wtf lol... first you say: you're threatening to attack the jelly community. I reply in the most appropriate way, a simple expression of astonished disbelief - and you say "you haven't even considered you were wrong"?

try thinking in a straight line, perhaps?

PapaElbo wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 00:25: Spoony wrote on Thu, 08 October 2009 23:06: Nobody at Jelly has any permission from EA, and yet they treat me despicably, for absolutely no justification. Perhaps they're the ones you should be talking to?

You don't do yourself any favours by having random debates on our forums about clan wars issues or the pointsfix (or both at the same time!). You know most people at Jelly have no interest in discussing clan wars or the pointsfix but I assume you can't resist. Simply leaving those issues alone would have seen you right - you are a good player and from what I hear, a good mod too who was very much appreciated - but you keep stirring about pointsfix and people have grown tired of it.

So you don't deny that the way the Jelly community has been treating me for months IS indeed despicable, but like Raven and Tellsson before you (both of whom originally denied this) you say: but it's justified.

You cite two "crimes": 1. me talking about the pointsfix. 2. me talking about "clan wars issues".

well, neither of these actually puts me at fault. Starting with the pointsfix. The very most I've ever done on the jelly forums is say why I think it's a good idea, making my reasons very clear. That's all. It was never my decision whether to actually use the pointsfix on the jelly servers. Back when Jelly was a better man than he is now, he actually tried to convince everyone of that point.... "there's no point flaming Spoony all the time, it's not his choice, it's mine". But oh no, I LIKE the pointsfix, which is a terrible crime?

2. clan wars issues. Are you really sure you want to mention this, considering how damaging it is to the jelly community? For people who aren't familiar with what happened: I posted a thread on jelly talking about some of my ideas for the public-server ladder.

It was heavily criticised by a jelly moderator, Clearshot (who is a fairly long-time player on the clanwars league). he said: nobody should bother with this ladder because spoony is extremely corrupt, he did all these horrible abuses of power when he ran the clanwars league and he'll do the same with this one.

he gave a great many examples, such as:

"spoony, as admin, let his clanmate Soul get away with pointpushing"

"spoony later let his clanmate whiskey get away with pointpushing"

"spoony suspended me (i.e. clearshot) for something he wasn't even involved with"

"spoony punished clans for offences that weren't even against the rules at the time" and so on and so on. he made about a dozen of these accusations. they all had one thing in common: they were completely made up. not only that, but they were depressingly easy to disprove. for example, most of his accusations of me abusing admin power refer to periods in clanwars history before i even became the admin at all.

anyone with a brain could see clearshot was lying through his teeth... i even asked jelly himself to point out that i was telling the truth. he wouldn't. why, i wonder? let's allow a jelly moderator to lie to the community again and again and again just to make the new ladder look bad, because if anyone tells the truth it might paint spoony in a positive light, and we can't have that.

but hey, according to you, i'm "doing myself no favours" by defending myself against these ridiculous lies?

this may be a good time to repeat the question i asked before. so far only raven's had the balls to answer it. isn't it very interesting that i am treated with astonishing public levels of contempt on the jelly forums, whereas i haven't seen a single public post flaming - for example - msgtpain? but then, prulez said it best: you complain about the things you care about, don't you...

PapaElbo wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 00:25Spoony wrote on Thu, 08 October 2009 23:06And yet I personally still think it's good to have it optional, even though many people on the anti-pointsfix side don't.

Reply and repeat.

this thing really does need repeating! clearly nobody can grasp the solid fact that if you wanna use the pointsfix in your own community, i don't care. really, i don't. but many people in the jelly community have proven they DON'T want me to choose to use the pointsfix in mine.

this really is an extraordinary fact that completely cripples the credibility of everybody involved; why do you think roni found it so embarrassing that he immediately changed the subject?

PapaElbo wrote on Fri, 09 October 2009 00:25Jelly didnt need to prove anything to you or anyone else in this thread. I think at the end of the day, thats the point we are all trying to make.

yes, it is, isn't it? the best argument you've come up with is "we don't have to explain ourselves to anyone". which is, of course, the problem to begin with...
