I did a little cheer when I heard it passed, and then I hear what's actually in the bill and I go "...That's it?". At times, I have great faith in humanity and believe we're all destined for and capable of great things, times like these just ruin all of that.
maybe their just taking small steps at a time, not forcing everything at once

Perhaps you might have missed this since you're in Norway, but this process has taken us a year and a half, and the entire time Republicans have been telling us the earth will split in two and demons will come out of hell to rule the world if this bill is passed.

The whole health care bill is basically;

- 1) Insurance companies can't do bullshit like randomly drop customers or cap benefits.
- 2) Uninsured/Uninsurable can join high risk pools.
- 3) $250 for pills to seniors not covered under medicare part B. $250 for pills is nothing.

Really? Really, Republicans?

Ive heard some about it, but not that i took so long time, but ive seen how it went, so maybe, just maybe, there will be some more changes by the years.

And shit $250 for pills? Seriously, if i, for example need pills or any other stuff, vital to me, its mostly free here. Pills Here!
