Subject: Re: Should we ban the burqa?
Posted by EvilWhiteDragon on Sat, 12 Jun 2010 10:48:22 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

reborn wrote on Sat, 12 June 2010 11:15EvilWhiteDragon wrote on Fri, 11 June 2010
22:12reborn wrote on Fri, 11 June 2010 19:22freedom fighter, or terrorist, interesting arguement...

Understand me right, killing innocent people is never the right thing to do, but the definition of terrorism is based purely on opinion. One mans terrorist is another's freedom fighter.

Edit: any killing is wrong. One can never determine whether the other truly deserved it and you're no better than the one you despise when you murder him, whether legally allowed or not, it's still morally wrong.

Let's assume you're right, and all you said above was true. Whether they're a freedom fighter or terrorist in this argument is irrelevant really. What you class them as is just a word.

reborn wrote on Wed, 09 June 2010 06:04
Not all Muslims are terrorists, but it's a sad truth that nearly all terrorists are Muslim.

If it helps, change it to:

reborn wrote on Wed, 09 June 2010 06:04
Not all Muslims are freedom fighters, but it's a sad truth that nearly all freedom fighters are Muslim.

Banning the Burqa would help hinder acts of freedom fighting/terrorism.
I disagree, I think it would cause just more anger at the western world. Particularly because 'we' the 'modern' and 'civilized' world are forcing 'freedom' on other countries. While Freedom of Speech and Freedom of religion are very high morals, we should at least live by them ourself before we want to force them on others. Banning the burqa because a lot of muslims are terrorists (I do not agree to that, but just lets presume it is), would be wrong, we would violate the freedom of religion. Personally I'd like to see all religion banned, but I know that's not going to happen, so then we should allow all religions. The solution to this would be, as said earlier, banning all face covering clothes, or clothes that makes people unidentifiable, in public. This would be something I do find acceptable.