Quote:Surprisingly enough....it was a yes or no question. I didn't even bother reading the post, because it's so extremely obvious that all you're doing is avoiding the question. I dare you to reply to this with a yes or no answer to the question. In fact, I triple dog dare you.

ok, it was obvious your anger at losing the pointsfix argument wasn't gonna subside anytime soon.

Quote:LOL. According to your specifications here on win or lose, Spoony, have you ever lost an argument?

when you say "here" are you just talking about renforums?

my specifications for losing an argument is basically two things

1. the stuff you say (or at least, a decent amount of it) is debunked
2. you are unable to debunk what the opposition says on those specifications, i struggle to think of a specific argument i've lost on this forum, though there might be one that's slipped my mind. i would never dream of thinking that it's an impossible scenario. while we're on the subject, there are plenty of people in this thread who've demonstrably lost arguments and have done everything they can to avoid admitting it - simpee is probably the best example you'll ever find, hitman in this thread (though not so much in the past), hate, boomer. why don't you go after them? why don't you say anything about someone like simpee, who flat out lies through his teeth every single time he's in an argument with me? do you seriously have nothing critical to say about that? if the answer's no, it makes your comments about me really funny.

and here's the thing - i've always been in favour of open debate. i'll always give you the chance to tell me why i'm wrong. always. (plenty of other people have done what they could to stifle debate. i've always encouraged it.) the fact you catastrophically fail every time you try doesn't reflect negatively on me. you've just gotta get your head around the fact that maybe spoony's right about something, instead of saying "LOL I FORGOT SPOONYS NEVER WRONG" right after i just showed you why you were wrong

Quote:spoony have u read ur posts directed at me even when i havent made a comment? why would i apologize for the one time we did the same back to u?

thanks for proving what i've been saying about you ad nauseum - that you have no regard WHAT-SO-EVER for honesty. everything i've said about you has been true, you haven't disproven a single fucking word of it. by contrast, you've tried lying about me a STAGGERING number of times and you've been caught every single time.

i'm gonna repeat something extremely simple and extremely important. i've said this to you several times before and you've always been too damn thick to get it, but one last try:

i have never done anything wrong to you, simpee. nothing. and this is probably strange, given the EXTRAORDINARILY pathetic way you have always, always behaved towards me. despite this, i have done you nothing but favours.

you owe me an apology for what you did, be a man for the first time in your renelife and apologise, or are you just too much of a lying, pathetic little bitch? why aren't you even slightly embarrassed at how many times you've intentionally lied through your teeth just to attack someone who has never done anything wrong to you? if you act in real life the way you act on renegade, i really wish you the best of luck, and i feel sorry for your parents.
