There are a lot of bright minds in the Renegade Community, but I quit seeing any value in Renegade, it is the people who were collectively a part of DPDN who worked hard at making a usable Lua script archive, providing each other helpful support, as well as supporting DCOM Productions when it first started. Though I no longer see any value in old deprecated item such as C&C Renegade, I still see value in bright individuals with strong talent, and passion for what they do. It is out of respect of the small community 'DPDN' that was built by such people, that I bring back the Renegade archives for them, and those who many a times had contacted me and made the request.
