It's easy because that's what you were brought up hearing and saying. If you were raised in a different country you would be having a hard time learning English.

I don't think that there should be a generally spoken language but I do take American English over British English... since it is much more clear and concise and doesn't have a stupid accent that tends to mumble words together to a point where untrained ears would not be able to understand what is being said.
