It's clear have no clue what you're talking about.

If I'm using your logic correctly, Mongolians should be allowed to do whatever they want to China.

China is made of many unique cultures. The difference is China has a history of assimilating groups; even now, the government is trying to squash ethnic and nationalistic diversity.

North America generally embraces that diversity. The best of all cultures are brought to North America. That gives the US, and Canada their own identities and cultures.

How about a little bit of reading. Maybe work on that English of yours.
