You didn't use to run the game full screen and run it windowed now or something to you?

I would almost think it sounds like something else interrupting windows' focus on the game, but then the probably should be reversed (IE: you let up on v and it keeps free targeting).

I've had a wireless mouse that's been having issues for years now, while holding right click it will randomly act like I released my right mouse button (it usually happens when my mouse moves to certain locations, pretty sure it's my hand blocking the signal). Therefore, even though I don't have a free targeting issue, I know your pain.
