Fancy colours and tough words aren't going to win you any penis-size contest, kiddo. Maybe instead of working against them, picking and proding at the efforts, and generally being a fucktarded little boy, you could try working WITH the team on a software which is already under development.

But, if you want, you can stick to your yellow text and picking fights with blackhats in the underground until someone thinks you're worth something.
BTW, nice site.
