Well, they do still have single player, but yeah, the dumbass would be the people buying it if it were anyone's fault. Because all EA is going to do off of this deal is make money (unless they actually put an effort into "Updated for Windows 7 and Windows Vista" which would most certainly cost some money to go back though all that old code and figure out how it all worked, get it to use TCP instead of IPX etc.).

Not that I won't be one of those dumbasses buying the games I already own over again. Another CD key can never hurt.
