Well, before I paste this e-mail from Melissa (Lynne's sister), I just want to thank everyone for their kind words and support.

I just checked my e-mail and saw a message from Melissa Stevenson, so a feeling of dread came over me... I thought she had died in the hospital after the surgery. According to her, she's doing just fine now...

I don't really know you, but Lynne asked me to send you something. She told me to get your email off of <http://aircraftkiller.blogspot.com>. I hope this is the right email. She told me to go on IRC if I wanted or even aim. Little does she know, I have no clue what "aim" is and I don't know where to connect with IRC. She wrote something for you.. And asked me to let you know how things were going. She told me this last night. She is done with the surgery. She went in early this morning. Shes still there right now. She is alive. Don't worry, she didn't die or anything. I had to come back home to watch my younger brother Will. So if you wanted to talk or needed any assurance I'll be around.

This is what she said (to me) last night:

Private, doesn't need to be said here

That was it. Upon reading this, you are probably thinking something bad happened. She's alive and concious. The surgery went well, but she will be there for a while. I'm not sure how long. Probably a few days. I'm sure it will be ok.

You must be the one she writes about. She keeps a journal hidden in her room. Being myself, I went ahead and read it. She hasn't been this happy in a long time. I don't know what you said or did, but thank you. If you have anything you want her to know just let me know, and I can pass it on. I'm going to see her tomorrow morning.

~Melissa

I'm nearly in tears right now from being very happy... I wanted to let everyone know that she's doing okay. I'm sure that God heard us all and made sure she'd come back to us.

Thank you all... thank you so much...
