No, in all honesty, lets go back and rehash that thread.

SomeGuy: Hey, I've beaten the game on the easiest, but get my ass kicked on the next difficulty level. I've been looking for about a week for a mod or something in SP, can anyone help me out?

You: Try some zip bleh program, oh yea.. and you don't plan on using this in MP do you?

My first observation, as with Phoenixx was that he 'said straight out' that he was looking to play the SP game again on a higher difficulty level, and was looking for a mod to help him. "He" doesn't need to say anything about MP, he stated very clearly that he was looking for SP.. YOU are the one that is implying he might be a MP cheater. So, why the assumptions?

Which leads us on to the next observation. If he DID want these for MP, do you think he's going to sheepishly reply "Yea, I want it for MP but I was trying to sneak it past you all." Probably not.. If he wants them for MP, he sure as hell isn't going to say so, especially when put on the spot about it.. so why ask? The only logical answer is that it is somewhat self-serving, in that you wanted to be the first to lecture him about the evilness of cheating in multiplayer, you just wanted him to give you a reason to first.

And all this, is of course, my own opinion.. but hey.. you asked for it.
