Was it important to capture Saadam Hussein? Yep. With our international credibility totally shot, and a growing anti-American sentiment of the Iraq populace, we needed some sort of victory.

Let us not forget, that we didn't go into Iraq to capture Saadam. That wasn't ever on our agenda. We were offering him a safe passage out until the 11th hour.

We had to catch Saadam now, though, because there are no Weapons od Mass Destruction. No Nukes, No Chemical Stockpiles, no Nothing. THATS why we invaded Iraq, as a pre-emptive smack-down to avoid his use of WMDs.

Now, instead of crucifying George W Bush for blatantly ignoring international laws and treaties and using fear and misinformation the scare Americans into supporting this invasion, people will be praising GW Bush Jr for capturing Saadam. "Good Job President Bush, we finally caught Saadam, the very reason for our coming here."
 :rolleyes:
