Bigejoe14: you lack. I mean, saying we just 'fail to understand' without argumenting why just makes your whole statement useless.

Warranto, I DO realize. What I also realize is that in the real world companies aren't so childish. They do compare eachothers products and call their own better, but they never start flaming and calling eachother's products names. Not in public, not behind the scenes. Now you can keep on nitpicking about the details of my argumentation or you can resign on it and realise you won't come far being childish.

ACK, the trick is to find a way of cometition without fights and flamewars. It may take some more thinking, but I bet there are possibilities. Don't tear the community apart please!
