DragonFgmrpirateThe act of having sex is not what makes one gay. Being attracted to the same sex is.

Well it's wrong for one man to be attracted to another man. Those feeling of attraction come from Satan. Any person who is right with God will not be attracted to someone of the same sex. And if you don't believe the same way as me then we're basically at a stalemate, because I believe something and you don't.. I think everybody has covered all the possible points by now. So unless someone manages to bring up something else I'm all done.

Thats ridiculous, and you know it (or for your sake, I hope you do). You're just like David McNamda.

You're basing your whole arguement on faith. Do you know what faith is? Faith is the acknowledgment and unequivocal acceptance of unproven facts. If they are proven facts, then it is not faith, and you don't have a religion, only a science. Since you can't argue unproven truths, you can't say that being gay is wrong -- at least and expect to look like anything more than a blind follower.
