If you are responsible for the death of another human, you deserve punishment regardless of legal system.

This nitwit refused a medical procedure that could have saved a life she was responsible for because she didn't want a scar. Then she tried to sell a dead child for bail money, and is also responsible for loading her unborn children with drugs. Then we get into the past child endangerment of punching one of her other children in the face for stealing a candy bar.

She is the exception, not the rule, and that's why they are loading for bear on this one. She is a danger to the children she has, and potentially could have. Lock her away.
