Happy St Patricks Day.

Now i don't really have to explain what happened to my "death" , but i will because you know..you lot deserve it.

Back last year , i think it was summer i went away to a vocal course and im not the only one who uses the computer in the house as we are a "family", well when i got back i was real mad at my family and friends as they had gained access to my computer and done quite a bit of damage and you know what i had to do? yeah i had to pick myself up and ack has had a grudge against me since but now you know.

About WWII: Warpath:

I have a HP Pavillion MX70 pc that runs XP and back when i was running warpath i didnt have firewalls,anti-virus and the latest XP patches..my pc crashed around once a month so i was very stressed alot of the time, After time went along i wasn't getting any pc crashes so i thought it wasnt going to happen and i created alot of work for Warpath and then the ironic thing happens, i get a pc crash. Now when i get pc crashes it brings up a blue screen with exception codes, i contacted PC shop and they said only thing that would get your pc working was to format, and so i had to do that and lost all the files from warpath.

Now, if you go and look at Windows Updates, there is an update there that shows HP Pavillion pc can crash on the XP operating system, proof, and i guess its up to you to belive what you think but it did happened and i was so mad atmyslf i had to get away, i hated myself because i had let the community down..so what did i do? whilst i was away for a few months i was working on a new mod called Fist of Fate a medieval mod that was to say sorry for what went wrong.

Im real sorry guys about Warpath , halo38 released some of the maps a while back.

So there you go, FOF is here and i want to thank all its supporters for doing a good job supporting it, keep those banners coming and remember the forums and website address:

http://fofmod.com
http://fof.deadlyfear.com/forums

Peace.