

---

Subject: "U.S. government objectives in Iraq"

Posted by NeoSaber on Sun, 23 Mar 2003 01:27:44 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

havocsnipe That's what America's frighteningly rat-like neocons are telling us with their talk about a damaged U.N. and Atlantic Alliance. They just neglect to mention that it is the U.S. that did the damage.

I just read that line and I'm absolutely stunned someone could say that. I won't get into the crap that happened at the UN, but as far as NATO goes, France did ALL the damage. Turkey requested extra defenses in case war with Iraq happened. It is mandated in the NATO charter that all member nations comply with the request. France refused in clear violation of NATO's charter. Germany and Belgium went along at first, but even they realized it was wrong to block Turkey's request.

---