according to this site(a man living in baghdad)

the bombs have been very accurate. unfortunately, iraq has placed these military targets in the middle of a bunch of civilian homes.

what kind of idiot does that unless they are using civilians as shields.

even here in the us, most government instalations have at least a hundred yards or so buffer between the "target" and civilian buildings and during times of war(when we have a chance of being attacked) they evacuate far away from any such target.
