
Subject: LOL@Nickelback

Posted by Dave Mason on Tue, 29 Jun 2004 16:40:11 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

slayerDJMsniper12345DJMi went to a nickelback concert at the wolverhampton civic hall the other day (thrusday 19th), my m8 caught chad kroegers plectrum!!! grr, it was ace, we were standing about 15 feet away from Chad and co.

flame me for what music i like if you wish but i think their music is really good and that they are very talented on their instruments.

also a fit blonde got on our shoulders and took her top of which was brilliant too.

Judging from your post, I conclude that you do not play a musical instrument.

I play the drums and I'm very good may I add. and before anyone adds i know that post made me sound like a n00b but i only had about 30 seconds left before my ga.y isp reset the connection.

What sort of music do you play? Can you also do the Double bass technique?

Takes alot to get your head round the double bass ut yes i can manage it, if i had any money I would buy two base drums and have a setup similar to Billy Cobham's (two base drums and around 7 sabian cymbal + hand crafted hand painted 7 peice drums). That would probably make my life easier.

and btw i play rock/metal (I LOVE the beat to For Whom the bell tolls by Metallica, simple as hell but its just fun). My fav drum beat HAS GOT TO BE Pick withers' from Dire Straits' "Sultains of swing".

if you have never heard of Dire straits, they are not heavy or metal they are calming slightly country style music but they're music is EXTREMELY talented. Mark Knopfler has to be one of the best guitarists out there, along with Eric Clapton, Jimi hendrix, and the rest.

I would seriously recommend:

Telegraph Road
Sultains of Swing
Lady Writer
Walk Of Life
Local Hero
Your Latest Trick
Down to the Waterline

Money For Nothing
Brothers in Arms
Among many others that I love.
