yea for once i actually read the entire thing.

I like the details described, and it really does make it sound alot better how its explained such in depth about what comes with the mod, and how its made etc etc.

Very good job on that, looking forward to the release

Terminator 101Imdgr8oneNeox is now wanking off to that picture

What does "wanking off" mean?

1. Find a nice sexy image and/or video to watch that sexually arouses you. (In NeoX's case a picture of ACK is excelent, but for the rest of us a hot women works great. try <http://www.booble.com> and do a little bit of searching)
2. Take you hand and place it onto your penis.
3. Firmly grasp your penis.
4. Move your hand up and down along the shaft of your penis while still keeping a firm grip onto it.

I can't believe I actually typed that shudders

Ok ACK we'll all go back to the topic now . . . The interview was quit interesting, I was hoping you would say when .993 would be release, not just soon. Ohh well, I just checked the RenAlert website today, everything is done, but the installer needs to be made and tested. About how large of a file will .993 be?

Are you going to need like 500 Terabytes of bandwidth, since everyone will want to download this the second it comes out?

Can't you make that up in some 4 pieces with individual installers for 56k users? In Scotland (or maybe the whole UK) we're stuck with 2 hours per dial-ip, and I don't know of an ISP that doesn't restrict it to that.

An average 56k going at 49,333bps can download the Renegade 1.037 patch (which is 23Mb) in just over an hour and a half. By calculation, a single Mb at that speed would take almost 4 minutes, so in 2 hours, without any other use on the connection, it could download just over 30Mb. If you're planning to make the installer in segments, I'd make each segment about 26mb in size to be safe. There might be some sort of combining utility, such as one for sending audio files in pieces by e-mail, to combine them into one.

screw the 56kers, its the year 2004 not the 1990s. Upgrade your connection for not much more then what you pay for the hunk of junk you call internet 100 mb, not bad, won't take me to long to download as long as it isn't on File Planet, that always takes forever to even start the download. . . I have a question related, kinda, to .933 will file mirrors get .993 before everyone else so that they can upload it, and such for download?
