How come the Germans/French/Russians/etc arent pissed about the game Battlefield 1942? It is recreation of wars including the landscape.

I don't get why people are so uptight about something that isn't real!
I couldn't care what it is, whether blowing up London in YR or blowing up famous landmarks like the eiffel tower. It is just a game and has no real effect on real life at all.
Those types of people need to find something worthwhile to complain about.

The russians do not care, but the French probably are. Some germans maybe as well...

Generals may be on the German index, by the way. I dunno why, probably because you can play for the terrorists and that wouldn't be politically correct or whatever (The german index is completely idiotic, so I don't really bother)

Hey come on... Every one is stereotyped in that game! It's like all the cliché's mashed into one EA-sponsored Cliché-fest. Does everyone think all us Americans talk like cowboys like the rangers? I doubt that in China there are huge towers shouting FIGHT FOR CHINA over and over again. Come on people, it's a game. Russia was depicted as launching a giant strike on the US and screwing over the US Government in RA2, and did the Russians complain? No! Did the US complain? No! Even though we were the ones being mass invaded. Did the US Pull the cable from their modem and cause a mismatch error? () NO! The US fought the Russian invasion and the game was saved. If the Chinese don't like how they're depicted, play as the US or the GLA. I rarely play as the US so I don't think your nationality has any bearing on what side you play.

China is a very self-centred country and it is using race, nationalism and foreign imperialism to unify the views within the country. This created several views in China. 1. Most treaties signed in the late 1800's do not count as the part of land was offered to other countries compensate for war cost. This includes Taiwan and part of Hong Kong. 2. China is the most powerful country in the world and any insult to it will be crushed without resistance. 3. Other country all want a piece of China or invade other countries to expand their territory. 4. China has nothing to do with terrorism, it does not get involve with sabating other country or have terrorism that belongs to the Han people(the largest race in China).

As you can see that General has insulted China by blowing up Tiananmen square, so some people are not happy about it. If it is a good game where they get blow up USA it probably won't matter too much. :rolleyes:

I don't think the vast majority of Chinese was pissed, that was just written in an article, that does not reflect the Chinese opinion in any way...

Did you know how the mass media in Germany sparked off a HUGE anti-CS-propaganda after the massacre of Erfurt (a student killed 17 of his class-mates), as though that was the only cause for it...

The media likes to criticise PC-games on every occasion, doesn't mean anything...

When RA2's Expansion YR came out I played it at my father's house with his nosy ass girlfriend (i....must....destroy....) was watching me play it, and watched me play a mison where the briefing said I need to mind control the president and destroy the white house.

Shes all yelling at me 'FAIL THAT MISION OR I WILL BURN THIS CD!' Im like yelling back 'Fuck off, its mine!'

She took it away and tried to hide it...luckly for me shes a dumbass that hides stuff on top of the refrigerator.

Honestly people, Its a game. The people that are bitching about it are usally the same people that say 'Its just a game!' when people argue over sports or whatnot. Its pathetic really.

Hehe, thats pretty funny. But Gen isn't getting nearly as much attention as Vice City (kickass game, if you don't have it then GET IT DAMMIT!). Anyway, I do remember Germany having problems with some WW2 games, pretty stupid though if you ask me.

And there is some truth to the argument games can push people over the edge, but you have to be pretty fucked (so happy that didn't get censored) to be that impressionable.

well, as a chinese in hongkong,

I didnt see any special news here and inside mainland ("china", the big part) if things really happen, HK's media will make it headline and kick any censorship (or planning) hard.

I dont get why uptight about something that simply unreal.....

ya know, those old asshole (usually 60+) in china just see things in 2 color sharp red or sky blue, everythings got a little blue or make red "dirty" just filter it out or kick u out of country.

just like some old junk in US just see things in color blue, everythings not get piece of blue or cant control should go war with it....

:rolleyes: :rolleyes:

but sadly the fact is old junkz rule the world / countrys

so we'd just get rid of it and go renegade, not general.

:twisted:

general just blow HK conventional center, most of us just like to blow it up to hell :twisted:

and I know some of game players in mainland love c&c:general so much...

(maybe they just love to blow the square again and again too :rolleyes:)

btw...I hate that suck game, it just "not C&C enough"

IMHO EA better put more $ on renegade, not general.

Kind of funny how the Communists whine when they are portrayed in a forgien video game. I say: Become capitalists and we'll consider your complaints.

Tiberian Dawn is set around the present... Tiberian Sun was supposed to be set some 20 years after TD.

If Renegade is supposed to be an FPS set around Tiberian Dawn than that would be present too...

I looked at each sequal being another part of the series (Red Alert -> Red Alert 2 (sequal to the prequal) -> Tiberian Dawn -> Tiberian Sun - Renegade. 5 I guess...)
