Okay, contest is over. Go home, folks. Either one of these two will win (most likely Madtone).

Well anyhow if you want to learn to do stuff for websites here is a nice tutorial. I just finished reading it and it was pretty easy to understand if you know the basic photoshop layout.

If only I had the graphical skills to make it look good. I have good ideas as to the design, but nothing in gfx to make it worthy.

I actually like n00bstories as it is very much so. The only part I dislike, is that... Div'd I'm guessing site nav at the top. It always loads once, I move to click something and it disapeers, I have to go back over to open it, click a 2nd time to finally get where I'm going. It just seems clunky. Other than that I'd be kinda sad to see it all go...

There are a couple people I haven't sent the "rules" to... I will send it when I get home.

I appreciate all the interest. I think that part of the reason I haven't had success migrating to other games is that we are still very Renegade-centric. I'm hoping a redesign will help neutralize that and encourage more people to join.

Don't make it too "different", I like the old look and I think the layout of it should be kept.

I would like a clean design similar to http://www.clanbase.com

The design I want to use for the site would be done in "boxes" of a non-consistent width. For example, just like ClanBase.com, the titles
the boxes should be a repeating image that will stretch to fit wherever I use it. And, just like the change I made on the current home page, I would like the banner to be aligned on the left and one of the "boxes" on the right.

So basically, you would be designing a banner that's non-specific to any game and designing a repeating image for the box headers. Please also plan on the colors changing so that you or I could change the colors around to create other color themes for users to choose from.

For the first design I would prefer to stick to shades of blue and either black, white, or any shade of gray (or a combination of those colors). I would pick Red but I think that would seem to favor Nod at first.

So, something clean, not too busy, I also still plan to have drop-down menus under the banner on the new site as well, but I will work out how they look and fit, just don't attach the banner to the rest of the design.

Thanks for wanting to participate, and good luck! If your design wins, your prize can double to $100 if you separate the images and code the HTML to put them together. However, for this contest, you only need to submit a single image.

If you have any questions, let me know!
