The Day After Tomorrow (movie), Far Cry and Renegade, and still a decent FPS with all. Gotta love 6800 GT

Pwnt.

Hmm, note that only Renegade's FPS goes above 100 because of the windowed mode, I'm betting about 40 for FC. The movie was playing with normal speed, but looks like it's not possible to take screenshot of it, it only shows black except for text.

How do you do this? Just open up a DVD player and start Renegade in windowed mode?

How do you start Renegade in Windowed mode anyway? I thought using print screen would cause the game to crash?

It's one of the small programs in the Renegade folder. I think it's Renrem...but I could very well be WAY off. I'd look if I had it installed.

You can also start Renegade in windowed mode by using RenConfig found in your start menu.

I use RenConfig tool & set res to 800x600 in windowed mode so I can utilize more desk space. Alt-tab to switch between ren window & other prog's...

Most video screenshots show as black because of the video/DVD over-lay setting. Just disable it in your software to take screenshots.

For Example:
Windows Media Player > Tools > Options > Performance Tab > Advanced > Un-tick Overlay Options.

That's crappy Scythar, you're running FarCry in the menu, not in-game. Nice try.

Renegade crashes in windowed mode if you press print screen. If you hold Alt and press print screen then it will not crash but only copy it to the clipboard. Use Fraps to take pictures.

I set Renegade to my desktop resolution so that when I play in windowed mode, not only am I going above 100 fps, but it also looks just like regular mode since it covers the whole screen.

There is nothing wrong with my video card. Are you in windowed mode?

Well the Far Cry menu scenery is quite demanding too, but I guess I could've taken the screenshot from the game.

You can also remove the refresh limit that's bound to your screen synch to do this in full mode if I recall correctly. I think someone posted a program which can do that somewhere in here too.

Didn't crash here.

I've already tried disabling vertical sync, but right now for some reason it works now, so now I can play in full mode at 1024x768 resolution without the frame limit. Full mode looks sharper for some reason and the contrast is A LOT better.
