Had a thought.

What if someone made a !purchase (player-name) command for IRC, to show how many tanks they bought and when? Would be useful when people are arguing about who stole a tank and who actually bought it, so server mods/admins in IRC can be sure they kicked the right player. Would be faster than scrolling up to find a vehicle purchase message.

You misunderstand. I know nothing about IRC scripting, which is why I'm asking if someone who does know, could tell me if it's possible.

e.g.

I'm arguing with some guy in-game who says I stole his med.

Moderator@IRC: !purchase SiXML

Server Bot@IRC: SiXML purchased a Medium Tank at 16:40. SiXML purchased an APC at 16:55

something like that

Spoony you thief LOL

In server2.ini you can set to show Vehicle Purchases.

As far as i know this will create a message on IRC [VEhicle Purchase] nickname

On IRC you can check it i suppose

I know, I'm talking about a command which will bring all recent purchases up conveniently so a moderator on IRC doesn't have to scroll up

Moderator@IRC: !purchase SiXML

Server Bot@IRC: SiXML purchased a Medium Tank at 16:40. SiXML purchased an APC at 16:55

something like that

Would be pretty easy to do.

I wouldn't know how to do it but it doesn't sound that hard to do.

THis would be great help as Spoony said, I think this command could be a great addition to any moderation bot.

Great idea man!
