If you are reading this thread, you have made it through the transition. If anyone is still seeing the "board unavailable" message, they should try:

Start > Run > cmd > ipconfig /flushdns

That might get them here. If not they just need to wait until their ISP updates their DNS.

If they can only see the "board unavailable" message, how will they be able to see how to fix it?

Obviously, I didn't say "you should try"... I said "they should try" so you can relay the message if someone asks.

Try removing the version link to prevent automated hackings.
