LOL I just tried getting to my site form school and Sentian blocked it sayign that it was illegal, I can still get to it if I use my other domain though, I just thought that was sort of funny becuase there isn't anything ilegal on my site. And my school didn't block my forums or chat which I sort of figured it would have done.

I can also get onto yahoo mail and other stuff like that and it doesn't get blocked.

If you have/can get RealPlayer on your school's network use thi internet browser embedded in that.

The bock on our system has no effect on the realplayer browser (for some reason).

Yeah I do, but I need to install qmail so that it will work. Because Sendmail sucks and broke itself when I told my server to upgrade.

go into doss and type ping <http://www.url.com> and then type the IP address it gives you into the address bar and in most of thsoe blocking programs it goes around it

My schools the same way.

We have this really bitchy ass librarian who only lets us use the computers for school work. I use to sneak on to this site and others while she wasn't looking but she smartened up and started checking the url box on internet explorer and she ended up blocking the renforums.

I know a bunch of people from my school that play renegade and post on CW but about a year ago when i got banned from CW i would go to school and post until the admin banned the school ip now no one can post on clanwars from any of the school computers...

I always use Google to bypass our filters at school.

Go here:

http://www.google.co.uk/language_tools?hl=en

Then, scroll down a bit, where you see Translate a web page, put the page in there, translate it from German to English or something, hit Translate and boom, bypassed it

My school's IT technician is too clever you cant get on anything to do with gaming (most stuff) even through yahoo, google, altavista etc, and the computers run some weird modded XP where you can't open anything but the programs installed on the system, boring
