I'm making a spoof of the new Dr. Pepper Cherry Vanilla ad (if you haven't seen it, go here and click media gallery, then look at the first video commerical.

Now, in my spoof, I'm planning on having:

A guy takes a drink of Dr. Pepper and starts hallucinating, and the kitchen starts singing to him. He get's freaked out, and half way through the song, blood shoots out of his nose and he falls to the ground. The music stops, and there is an awkward moment of silence while blood gathers on the floor. Soon, we see "Drink Dr. Pepper!" etc and the music starts playing again.

I have an early animation of the song itself, and wanted to know what you guys think. (Mouth animation is always a work in progress)
