ROFL

Crimson wants me to stop antagonizing you kids, but I'm not so sure I want to if you're going to give me priceless gems like this:

Quote:Reborn is still in it's alpha and beta testing.

Yeah guess what... Reborn has been in private testing for years and we have yet to get a decently playable version out to the public. I can recall about four times that their current "team" gave release dates that were later postponed. The most recent one was "It will be out in March", now it's May and no Reborn. Actually all they seem to do is keep remaking old crap into new crap. It takes the assembly line concept to a complete lower level!

Quote:Do you dare me to bring some early work of Renegade Alert (the old, old .pkg version) and show how much that peice of shit looks like fucking crap?

Yes you're quite articulate, aren't you... "How much that piece of shit looks like fucking crap." You could win the Pulitzer prize for excellence in writing with that fine specimen of English. Since you're obviously clueless, I'll let you in on a little known secret. RA had about 15 internal releases, with the 990 public release that was later fixed... Drumroll please... THAT SAME YEAR. Release in April of 2003 - 0.991 release in September of 2003.

Shortly after 0.991 came 0.9915 in September of 2003, with the 0.992 patch in Febuary of 2004, then the 0.9925 and 0.993 patches. After 0.993 came 0.9932. Now I know you've got troubles focusing your energy on understanding what you're writing about, so I'll explain it for you so that you're not going to be as totally clueless as you were when you wrote that reply.

Reborn has had a single, solitary, public release. As in, no more than one. Their internal releases? They only had three. We had 15 internal plus the public releases, all playable except the 0.990 package version which had several errors due to the package format.

You're almost comparing apples and oranges. Reborn has not released anything worthwhile and their fanbase is almost completely dead. One public release with three private releases and your n00b self comes in to defend them like you know what you're talking about.

Go back under your rock and stay there!

cool, one point for you... :rolleyes:

Anyway, it's still BS and he keeps saying his shits.

So I will explain it for ACK:

Why does it take so much time for us to make the mod ?

I will give you a simple hint :

Look at the number of weapons you had in Renalert and look at your so 'nice-up-and-down' reload animation. Now just think about the fact we are going further on this : Animating hands and guns for more than 8 weapons like in Renalert... And it's only the weapon part. Now think about charcaters : we add much more than you, this ask more work too. Vehicles ? our vehciles need animation. Renalert vehicles were all tanks... Buildings ? The nod wf was still a wip. Something much much better is coming for all.

The best part : WE STARTED THIS MOD ON 4th APRIL 2004. ALL THE WORK OF THE OLD REBORN OR OLD BETA IS IN THE GRABAGE. JUST FACE IT, WE ARE A NEW TEAM WITH A COMPLETE NEW MOD.

(I hope you will know understand this point and stop saying BS. So to help you and resume the stuff : we are working on reborn since 1 YEAR. we have a shit more work to do than what you did for Renalert.)

@Oblivion: I used that Model to write the turoial and did the first setup and correct one error just to show for the tutorial, and the handed it over to renardin so he can make it ready/test it

@Renardin: Maybe adding a Shaddow to the CLothes where the meet the 'legs' would add a more realistic touch to them? I mean it won't be recognized much ingame, but I msut agree that on that shoot it really loks a bit like the clothes are glued to the person

Uh, no since there isn't any limitations, it being "outdated" is completely irrelevant. Renegade has no polygon limits, I'm not sure about the texture size limitations, but they can already be done as large as new games. The game not having models that good is also no reason at all to not try to make good models.

However there is a catch: If you use "high"-poly models (more than 2000), it will mess up the LOD system.

Even if the game was running at 60 FPS, the game would always load the low LOD version of the model. When the "high"-poly models are not on the screen, the game loads the highest LOD version of the model (depending on Graphics settings).

You were saying how it's stupid to suggest that the mod be exactly like Tiberian Sun, while no one suggested anything of the sort, which was my point.

You then went on to make some ridiculous comparison about how you could construct (a virtually) unlimited number of structures/units and that doing that in the mod would cause severe lag. That's a engine/genre "limitation", and isn't the same as suggesting that only the soldier that had a certain weapon should get that weapon and not everyone.
