Congrats, you have just been banned from all servers that have moderators who view these forums.

Username: DarkHeavx

Reason: Stealth hack, possibly more.

I'm sure you were probably using more hacks but the movie sucked so much I didn't finish watching it. Kinda funny actually, you cheat and you still suck ass at renegade...

How does it rule? It shows you getting owned. You have a stealth hack, and yet you still got owned. I don't see how your jumping around getting killed makes for a good movie. Thanks for letting us know you cheat.

Don't you still have to hit a Stealthed unit(if they're not within viewing distance) before you can see them? Like in the case of sniping. You can't see Stealthed units through the scope unless they become unstealthed or something hits them.

Anyway, after watching this video, I can honestly say this was not worth the 36.7 MB download. It basically shows you getting reemed to death, shows that you use a high-visibility skin for Stealthed units, and shows you obviously lack any real stringing-together techniques in making videos. The video, aside from one or two parts, does not synch with the music in the least. Also, at around 3:40, we can clearly hear "GDI Infantry Barracks Under Attack". Niiice. . . Little word of advise. Don't bother making a "music video" until you have something interesting to show us. And for Christ's sake. Synch it up with the changes in the music or something. Make it interesting to watch. Fucking with the hue and color balance does not make this video "r0x".

I want that 5 minutes of my life back, so I can kick your ass. This was the worst Renegade movie I've ever seen, and that's sayin something, I saw mine. Your lack of skill with the APC, Medium Tank, Hotwire units made me laugh. You can't even dodge Tank rounds properly. You took full damage from the last shot when you went to that rock, when you only had to take a small amount. You use a Stealth Hack Skin which implies that you either think that Nod shouldn't be allowed to use Stealth units because GDI can't, or you're just a moron. If I really had the desire to make a Renegade movie, it wouldn't be this bad. And since I recently cleaned out my Data folder of any and all skins, so there would be no way I could use that horrible skin. Besides, you get skins because they're cool looking, not because they help you win games.

What's more, any intelligent Renegade player will come running whenever they hear that they're buildings are under attack, see a Flame Tank comin at their base, or get a message from an ally that says that a Flame Tank Rush is coming. I mean, seriously, you could have atleast staged the damn thing!

Oh my God... my rant about interent idiots is being proven more and more true as I read threads and posts.

thekingsthro.netIf their opposition defeats them in an argument, no matter how badly wounded they may be, idiots will strike back in a futile attempt to regain any ego, dignity, and territory lost in the argument. This is what's known as the "Adamian Principle". They will continue to dig themselves deeper and deeper into a hole without realizing it in an attempt to try outwit and/or outlast their opposition. 99% of the time, this results in failure and humiliation for the idiot. Though the argument may be over and the idiot defeated, they will still try and maintain dignity by claiming a false victory over their opposition. Often times, they will use some variation of "get a life" in order to explain their obvious defeat by claiming that their opposition has no life and spends all of his/her time on the computer.

The beacon disarms were setups. He had one friend on Nod who would set the beacons, and then C4 himself while this DumbHeavy guy disarmed the beacons.

I don't know how that's supposed to be impressive.

In one scene his friend is a sniper, watching him from the Hand of Nod window while he calmly disarms. Yeah, because that really happens in a game; the GDI sniper just watches you disarm his beacon.

Congratulations! You have just proved the theory that there is no limit to human stupidity. Just as the strength of a solitary brick will not save a poorly built structure, your bold typeface does not redeem your craven incoherent words.

If brains were gasoline, you wouldn't have enough to run an ant's go-kart around the inside of a donut. Wouldn't clues have more room to fit in your head if you got rid of some of the garbage in there? However, I'll consider letting you have the last word if you guarantee it will be your last. How true is Stanislaw J. Lec's famous remark: "Every now and then you meet someone whose ignorance is encyclopedic."

You light up a room when you leave it. No doubt your life is so dull, that you can actually write your diary one week in advance. If you called the Suicide Hotline, they'd say: "Go ahead. Do it!" Maybe you wouldn't read like such a pathetic loser if you didn't have an intellect rivaled only by the Village Idiot's stupider brother; if you weren't so grossly fat that you have to put your belt on with a boomerang, or if you didn't have a face that could scare a hungry wolf off a meat truck. Who am I kidding? You would.

In future, wake up the dozy peglegged hamster operating that wheel-powered brain of yours before you start typing.
