Reminds me of a Classic C&C type of map. I always hoped someone would make a map more like that. Nice Work

Is this collins?

Yes this idea was taken from a thread you made awhile back...so Thanks!...I owe you some credit.

and this is sort of a classic TD type map, with the AGT only shooting missles..there is 3 guard towers for GDI and a total of 5 Nod turrets....I'll post some of the readme:

Setting: Forest

Description: A War has been going on for sometime between GDI and Nod, Power plants along the outskirts of each teams base have been destroyed. Outer refinerys have been shut down due to low power sources.

Gameplay notes:

Conyards repair building's 1 health per second (Disabled once PP is gone)
Conyard also has a built-in Repair pad (12 health per second)(this remains operable until conyard is destroyed)
AGT missile has been increased 10 damage points per hit and fires at a rate of 1.5 seconds
AGT gun's have been removed (Tiberian Dawn style)
Silo's give a 1 credit per second
Mobile Artillery Turret turn rate has been increased from 60 to 120, it now costs 550 credits
GDI MRLS Turret will now rotate 360 degrees, it now costs 550 credits

Surprised you remember that far back... I'm neither confirming nor denying that I am Collins, actually. It's entirely up to you to decide. Kekekee...

In any case, this map sounds absolutely, positively rawkin!! I totally can't wait until Core Patch 2 to see it in action! I am so glad someone actually decided to do a Tiberian Dawn-styled map for once... And this is pretty much how the map would look in a Skirmish after a while if both teams were being symetrical. As you may have guessed... I love it! ^_^

It seems to be more like an infantry than a tank battle map. No big fields for tank battles, lots of hideouts for heavy infantry. But looks very nice! Will be interesting to see how battles work out on this map .

It's an exclusive as in it's will be 1st released with only the CP2...hopefully soon

After the CP2 is out, it's not a problem for the map to be d-loaded elsewhere....aslong as the readme is included.

about there being no big tank feilds....there is alot of room for tank battles to take place, the lighting on the overhead just hides it.....plenty of room for tanks with plenty of cover aswell...youll see soon enough.

A map that looks like it takes true strategy to be successful in. Looks to be plenty of cover and provides several, but not too many entry points to bases. Preview looks to be a 10/10

My only complaint so far is this:

"Conyard also has a built-in Repair pad (12 health per second)(this remains operable until conyard is destroyed)"

That is one of the stupidest ideas you've ever put into the game. They were separate structures, keep them that way!

Are you a defence freak? I think that would be a very bad idea. By the looks of what I see now, is that the base is perfectly fine to defend with one defence structure.

I'm going to agree with Aircraftkiller here, they should both be single structures, not both in one structure.

His terrain had enough polygons, and the Sun was at a low enough position, to create semi-decent shadowing with vertex lighting alone.

Usually applying mesh smooth to the entire terrain will result in pretty good shadows, since it will add an even amount of triangles everywhere.

Yea.. I thought it would add more value to the structure. Before, if the power goes out it rendered the Conyard completely useless. This way atleast it still functions as a Repair facility.

So I dont see it being to big of deal....next time I'll make them seperate though.

How exactly do you do a repair pad? Do you have to attach a zone with a building controller or something?

Its basically a very small building with a script zone above it which repairs vehicles...

Huh, so it looks like you put a C&C repair pad in front of the CY in the top view. Why not just move that out a little and make it a separate structure? Oh, and if I remember correctly, you could repair buildings in low power in C&C, just at a reduced rate. First-rate looking map.

dude#1, No building controller was needed for this repair pad, but if you wanted one.....A standard controller setup with your mesh prefix would work with the JFW_repair_zone script attached to a script zone all. You then have to send a custom upon death of the building controller to disable the script(jfw_death_send_custom)

Forgive me if those arent the exact script names.

Kaiserpanda, the repair pad is part of the conyard...i could of seperated it, but like i said I wanted the conyard to hold more value.

About the reduced rate....not sure, but prehaps Jonwil could look into sending a custom to the current repair buildings script to knock the rate in half once the power goes out, I'd be happy to use it in any future maps or for the Reborn conyard.

I think i could do it now with a combination of scripts...once the PP is down, remove the conyard scripts via a custom and attach a new script to it that has a lower rate.

Now that ive actually played this map i have a few suggestions:

Add flying vehicles.

Move the Recon Bike and TOW Hummer to the regular vehicle menu.

Increase the price of the MRLS and Artillery, they're both very powerful on this map because they can attack the bases without being hit by any defenses.

I also noticed a few glitches:

The Nod PP always has a red interior, like its dead, even when its alive.

The fake PPs always have a green interior, like they're still alive.

Alright. As stated in the Core Patch 2 topic, this is officially my new favorite map in all of Renegade. Here's a summary of my take on it.

Pros

The dead refineries draw fire initially, but that could be the point. The map...is effing huge, too. The klaxon in the dead Power Plants is a nice touch as well.

Cons

The long, long distances between the bases makes for a rather lengthy trip using slow vehicles(Mobile Artillery, Mammoth Tank, etc.) GDI also seems to have something of an advantage compared to Nod, as most of the turrets sort of "turn a blind eye" to GDI units that are right out in the open, depending on where they lay. The wall-mounted turrets are also all but useless.

That's just my two bits. Don't wanna sound ungrateful and stuff... ^_^;

I know how to fix the dead power plants being normally colored. You need to ungroup the dead power plants and rename their damage aggregate proxy to something like "mgpwr_dead~". A preset name not already used in Level edit. Regroup and export.

Go into LE and temp the damage aggregate proxy and name it mgpwr_dead, go to settings and scroll down to the frame sequencing. Change them all to 4 or 9. That should fix your problem.

I might do a flying version later on down the road....recon and humvee are stuffed away in the extras since this map was a CP match and wanted just the standard vehicles available for default servers.

prices of those units have been increased already, but I'm assuming you want them even higher....there is spot (vehicle ramps) for vehicles to camp in their own base to defend arty/mrls attacks....not only that, I'm sure Havocs and Sakuras will be taking the large hill and keeping those light armored vehicles at bay

I'll be on servers monitoring the gameplay.....and I'll adjust for any future versions of this map as I see fit.

I mentioned in the readme about the PP bugs I couldn't fix at the time....I noticed Exdeath posted a fix...wish I would have known this before hand....I'll include this on my fix list for future versions.

Lithius....I still feel Nod has an advantage with the OB still being a bit stronger than the AGT.....the long distances help Nod with stank rushes reaching GDI's base as well.....you'll quickly learn that some routes are pretty fast to reach each other's base.

I'm glad a few people have posted about GDI having an advantage...I truly think and still do think Nod may have an advantage.

I wish the pits server was still up....msgtpain had a great Stats page per map, does any other server do this?

well, this map will also be made for Reborn ...and some of these fixes will be included in that version.
