Grand Theft Atuo: San andreas, I bought it about a year ago and i still regularly play it. Excellent game.

If you already have it for for any of two Ace Combat games for ps2, you can probably get them both for 50 dollars at a gameshop. Both excellent games, I still play them both regularly as well.

Since you obviously have a Gamecube, you can probably get F-Zero GX for about $20... But you have to have fast fingers.

So they are still allowing you to play video games? Thats like telling someone they can't talk to their friends anymore, but allowing them to call them on the phone. Parents these days...

No, it is more like telling your kids they can't smoke weed, but letting them pop vicodin like candy.

Off Topic You know your getting older when you find you can start something with the phrase "When I was your age".

On Topic What Genres are you looking for? I collect RPG's, so if that's what your intersted in, I can name quite a few good ones.

If you like football, NCAA Football 2006 is pretty much awsome...and I dont care if EA made it, EA Sports is god like

San Andreas is the best game you can get for a PS2 though

I would recommend you some games, but I hate consoles, and I don't know what games they have out for the consoles these days.

Personally if I were you, I would save your money and spend your spare time studying and doing your homework. Don't screw over your grades like I did...it screws up your chance for a good career.

I'd Reccomend Ace Combat: 5 The Unsung War
I'm not sure if you'd like this kind of game or not but I seem to be addicted to it.

But obviously nothing by EA "Games"

All of the Ace Combat series, if you can locate all of them. The older ones (1-3, 2 being the choice pick of the earlier three) were for PS, but they work just dandy on a PS2. I'm also rather fond of the SoulCalibur fighting games, though III has a rather annoying bug which can corrupt your savegame if you don't save it on a new card (knowing that, I'd recommend II over III). Ratchet and Clank is a good series, also, great fun. One of my friends here at school has Jak X, which is a combat racing game slightly reminiscent of the Wipeoout series, and is also loads of fun to play.

Or you could just be a goon like me, dig out an N64, and get some Goldeneye/Battletanx/Super Smash Bros. 4-way action going...

One of the best racing games: ATV Offroad Fury 2(3 sux)
One of the best FPS games: Killzone
If you like survival Horror games, try Suffering(this game is also for PC and Xbox)
Another pretty good survival Horror game is Resident Evil Code veronica X.
Need For Speed Underground 1 is good game too. Most Wanted has much more stuff including cops, but the controls and gameplay are screwed up, so make our choice.
Twisted Metal Black is pretty fun too(on medium difficulty)
There are so many choices.
Rainbow six 3 is pretty decent game, but not as good as one would expect it be.
Anyway, this is not a good Forum for PS2 advice.
