That must mean you can start joining me in Internet games right? Because I get really lonely without you near me.

Heheh, I feel great at the moment. There's this awesome music playing which I can't stop listening. Oh, I think I'm going to play something soon, but first I need to eat something, getting a bit hungry here. And since it's well over the midnight, I should go sleeping too. That, by the way, is sometimes problematic. I just keep thinking all kinds of things and before I notice the sun's rising already. Anyway, I love eating toasted bread with hot chocolate in the morning, I'll probably do it next morning too. With cheese and sausage...mmmm.

Eh, sorry.

I just got Battlefeild special forces, its a fun game, im going to play it for awile after im don checking the forums. I might eat some cookies and drink some pepsi along with it. I like cookies, the nice soft chewy type that you can get at a bakery or Tim Hortons. I like Tim Hortons but i would never like to work there, id rather work at future shop or the source. The only problem is im not 16 so i cant. I wouldnt want to work there all my life though because then I would be going to university for no reason at all. I cant wait to go to university.....

Working at Future Shop can be pretty fun. When I was in High School, I had my co-op placement there in the merchandising department. All I did most of the time was print price tags for items that had them missing, put items where they belong, organize the monster cable section, and so on.

I also like cookies and I prefer KitKat, but sometimes I also eat Bounty or some Digestive cookies. Those are pretty much the only good candy bars that I found in Canada after living here for 6 years.

I wonder how it is in USA....

I think that chocolate/candy bars are pretty much the same in the U.S. as in canada.

Dude, Ben & Jerry's Cherry Garcia ice cream is fucking awesome.

Oh, and Richard Cheese's rendition of "Enter Sandman" is pretty funny.
