Alrighty then, if this is in the wrong place, please move it and private message me about where you moved it to. Now, to the question.

While playing online, I noticed a teammate using emotes, such as kick, salute, punch, and maybe pick nose. Now, when I asked him how he did it, I was told that I should use the number pad. I tried it, but it didn't work. How do you use emotes in the game? Can it hurt your enemies? Also, I noticed that a forward roll, backward roll, and side roll could be performed with a double key, but then, I don't know what a double key is. What do you know about this? Thanks for your time.

Yours truly,
The guy who likes to scope.

You might want to change your font color, the dark red on black is hard to read.

It's like this for a reason. If I get enough complaints, though, I'll switch it to green.

(I can't see the white text very well, either, but I'm not whining)

You're serious? Sort your monitor out then, I can read it just fine. If your sight is that bad try holding ctrl and scrolling the mouse wheel forwards.

No, no. It's my eyes. They're geared more towards darker colors. Don't ask why, I still dunno. Bright colors on a dark background strain my eyes. Maybe I should venture into that mythical land I've heard of called, "Outside."

that is just an icon that you can pick from. It was never really voted on.

I can read your text just fine.

You know, there's always the option of changing the forum theme. That way, it'd be black on white, rather than white on black.

Nah. Dark colors on a white background hurt my eyes even worse. (Mostly kidding).

Oh, and I changed font to green. You likey?

I think you're thinking of this:

Space.

Earth.

Yeah. I was just there for the first time. Couldn't see much, though.
