Is there an objects.ddb in the preset folder?

That will happen when you start saving your presets. Than somehow LE gets ended before it gets a chance to finish saving.
Just make another mod and paste the presets from that folder back into your original one.

This is a bug caused by The First Decade. So far I haven't found a solution to fix this.

Ok,...not ok...

there is no "objects.ddb" and no "preset folder"

AND there is no one created when i create a new mod...

ok found the objects.ddb in the Always2.dat and now the editor is crashing when i load a mod with the presets...

Do not use the objects.ddb that is in always2.dat. I heard someone on these forums say it doesn't work.

Excellent! Great job on that, maybe we could get this topic pinned as the fix?

Btw, don't forget to do: Start > Run > Regedit

Else you can search for the right files (a).
