Subject: Stupid Windows "upgrade."
Posted by Berkut on Sun, 02 Jul 2006 19:45:28 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Not sure when it happened, but I received another pointless update for Windows. This one forces you to click once on any flash objects before you can interact with them. I hate that. How do I shut it off?

Subject: Re: Stupid Windows "upgrade."
Posted by Dr. Lithius on Sun, 02 Jul 2006 20:09:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Edit: Never-effing-mind... The particular patch I just linked a minute ago is out of date. Whee.

Subject: Re: Stupid Windows "upgrade."
Posted by Berkut on Wed, 05 Jul 2006 17:24:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

This patch I'm talkin about forms a grey outline around Flash objects, and requires you to click them to 'activate the control.' I hate this more than anything. Someone kill it!

Please.

Subject: Re: Stupid Windows "upgrade."
Posted by danpaul88 on Tue, 11 Jul 2006 10:07:08 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You cant fix it your side, it has to be fixed by the person who's website it is, they can fix their flash code. Or rather, modify their flash code to conform to microsofts whims....

Subject: Re: Stupid Windows "upgrade."
Posted by Berkut on Tue, 11 Jul 2006 22:55:42 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Uh... no. It happens on ALL of the flash I encounter as of a few months ago.

Subject: Re: Stupid Windows "upgrade."
Posted by danpaul88 on Tue, 11 Jul 2006 22:59:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

WakkoI figured I should share what the solution is for the dreadful Microsoft update on April 11th. The fix they released is permanent and will not change. It has affected millions of websites. Now it is up to the web developers to change the code into this new way if they want flash or activex to work as designed.

Source -> http://www.gamersphere.com/forums/showthread.php?t=127

The reason its on most websites you encounter still is that most sites have not fixed the problem yet. This ONLY affects Internet Explorer (the change is in how activeX works, which only IE uses), so if you switch to a different browser (firefox, opera etc) you won't have the problem.

Subject: Re: Stupid Windows "upgrade."
Posted by Berkut on Tue, 11 Jul 2006 23:03:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Dangit. Ah well. Homestarrunner.com will never be the same...