Some of you might have heard of the GS league, many of you probably will not have done. What we are aiming to do is create a gaming league based around clans, instead of the leagues themselves, so one clan can participate in multiple leagues.

At the moment the core coding for the league is in place, and needs some decent testing to find bugs etc. If you are interested in alpha testing the league please register at <http://testboard.gamersphere.com/forums/index.php> and either create your clan or join an existing one created by another clan member.

For the moment I recommend only challenging each other to 'fake' matches, although do feel free to challenge each other to real matches, there's no reason why you cannot. It just means more testing as you can create a LOT more challenges if they are not intended to actually be played.

More info -> http://testboard.gamersphere.com/forums/showthread.php?p=2#p\_ost2

At the moment only friendly matches can be arranged, but the leagues themselves will be added soon, once we are sure there are no bugs in the core clan management code.

GW are interested.

We need to get competitive again.

Once the leagues are up, either me or DaN will register us.

TK2 will sign up as well: we're always in for some fun games. An we still need to beat GW (or die trying).
