Yeah... topic.

How can I tell what serial number I used to register Renegade?

You can't: the serial is encrypted in the registry.

Well, I've installed 2 different copies of Renegade, and I need to erase one of the passwords using the reset password thing, but I'm not sure if they are the same copy I only want to erase 1 of the pass's. How can I find it in the registry?

I think the serial changer

<http://www.renegadeforums.com/index.php?t=msg&th=19368&start=0&rid=4882> may give you the original encrypted serial. Unsure though.

Otherwise in the registry, local machine, software, westwood, renegade, serial

I think you all missed a key word in his question.

I believe you can check the nicks by logging onto the chat and typing /n.

If both the serials are different numbers does that mean a different serial code? (Under the Registry.) When It resets the passwords does it tell you what they are?

Yes.

The serial you use on your current Renegade installation is on the registry as Goztow said. there is never more than one serial. You can change your serial by editing the current one in the registry.

Is there a way to change passwords through the registry?

Yes, if you have a pass in the registry of one computer, you can go in the registry, copy it and paste in te registry of the other computer that was installed with another serial.

never tried it myself though.

You have to put in a wrong password to change your passwords in the Chat.
